

Are Laos photovoltaic panels a scam

Overview

If you've received an offer for "free solar panels," it could be a scam. Always look for businesses you can trust - like Accredited Businesses using the BBB Seal. In the worst cases, homeowners have been left making payments on overpriced systems that don't work, with little to no support from the installation company that put the panels on their roof. To avoid getting scammed, you need to know what to look out for and when to walk away. Here's our guide to. Scams, schemes and straight-up fraud abound in the dark underbelly of an otherwise light-filled industry. There are no federal government giveaways for. Did a salesperson knock on your door and promise free rooftop solar panels at no cost to you?

Or say you'll never have to pay another electricity bill because government programs, grants, or rebates cover your solar installation?

It's likely a scam. The idea that you won't have to pay for electricity at all is one of the common solar panel myths. While the best solar panels can offer significant benefits, including reduced energy costs and a smaller carbon footprint, the growing industry has unfortunately attracted its share of scammers and unethical companies.
