

Electricity rates syria

Overview

The government has now reduced the pricing system to just two main tiers, maintaining a 60% subsidy for households consuming up to 300 kWh per month. Industrial and commercial users face rates between 1,700 and 1,800 pounds per kilowatt-hour. The latest decision, which raised commercial and residential electricity tariffs, has led to a significant price increase across Syrian markets. Many have denounced the move as “unjust,” particularly for lower-income citizens already facing severe. When Hani Massalkhi went to pay his electricity bill in Damascus this week, he discovered that, under the new tariffs, the amount due was higher than his monthly income. Massalkhi, a retired agricultural engineer who lives on a $70-a-month pension, left without paying.
