

How to protect your rights when photovoltaic panels leak

Overview

Most states provide legal protections for solar installations while allowing reasonable restrictions, and conflicts can be resolved through communication, HOA procedures, mediation, or legal action when rights are violated. Understanding How to Protect Your Solar Investment: When homeowners install solar panels, they often take comfort in knowing the system comes with a 20–25-year warranty. However, not all warranties are the same. Many contain fine print that can make or break your protection. Discovering a roof leak after a new solar panel installation introduces immediate concerns about property damage and questions. Solar panel conflicts typically involve disputes between homeowners, neighbors, and HOAs over aesthetics, shading, and installation restrictions in residential communities. Solar panel damage can be invasive and often remains unnoticed until a year or more after installation. A roof leak is a serious issue that can lead to thousands of dollars in damage to your home's structure, insulation, and belongings. Simply put, it's the right thing to do. 8 million solar energy systems have been.
