

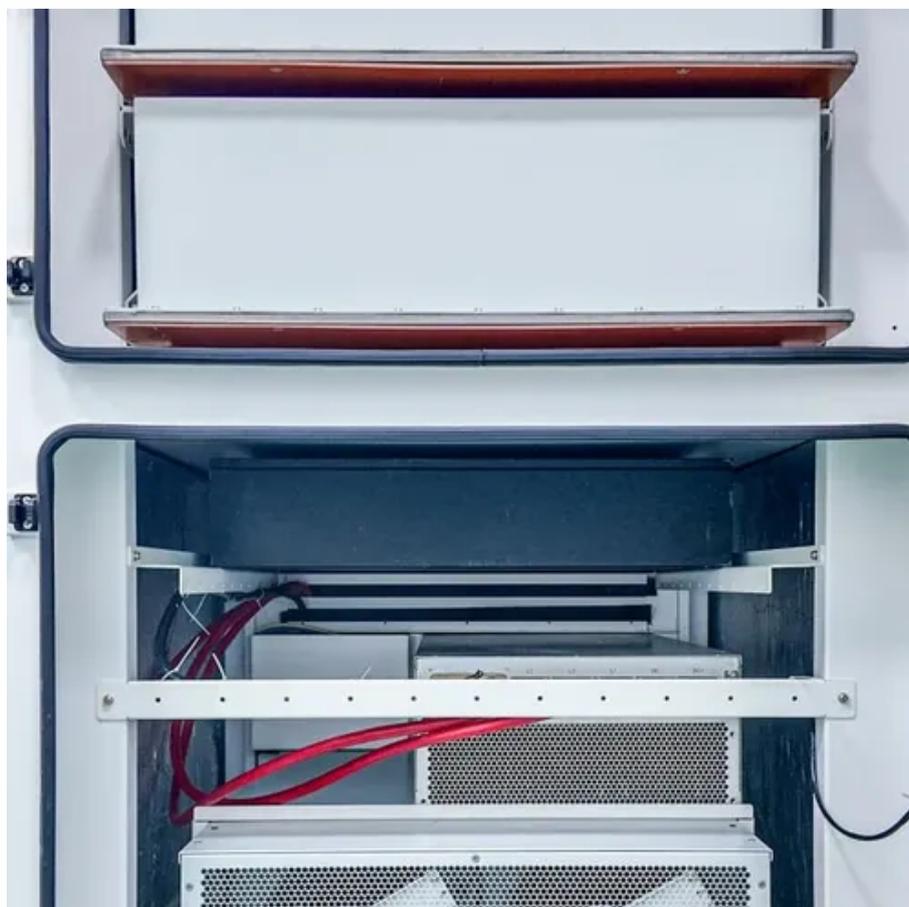

Photovoltaic circuit board scam exposed

Overview

Dozens of customers "filed complaints against a company called Pink Energy, which abruptly went out of business in September 2022 and filed for bankruptcy after allegedly selling defunct solar panels and misleading customers about their benefits," said Time. While reputable companies can help you save money with clean or solar energy improvements, scammers offer more than they can deliver. The scams vary, but here's the gist: someone claiming to be with the government or your utility company promises big savings on your utility bills from solar energy. Like any industry experiencing rapid growth, the solar sector isn't immune to unscrupulous practices and solar fraud. In this article, we're focusing on the hidden. While rooftop solar panels are becoming increasingly ubiquitous in homes throughout the United States, the industry also has a more sinister side: a seemingly widespread problem of fraudulent business practices that has cast a shadow over many solar panel companies. The criminals are leaving unsuspecting homeowners with massive debt; many victims have reported losing tens of thousands of dollars.
