

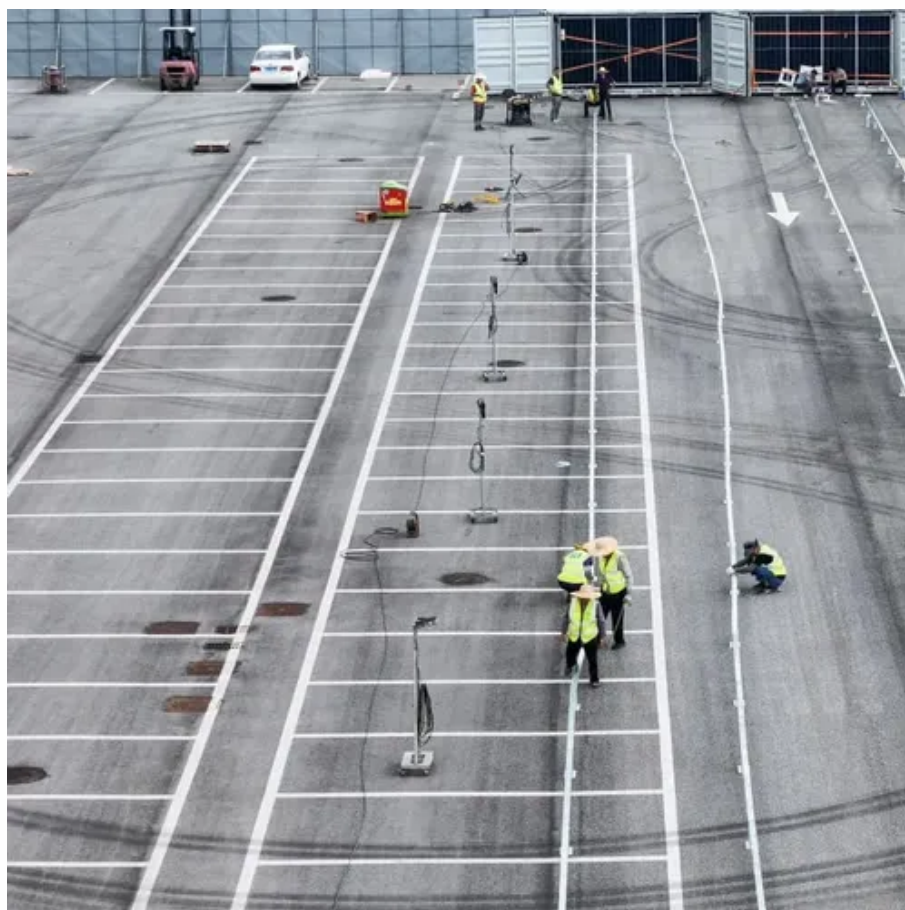

Photovoltaic energy storage charging pile three-in-one scam

Overview

These scams start with an unexpected phone call, message on social, or even an in-person visit. Or they might try to sign you up for a “free” program to make your home more energy efficient with. While reputable companies can help you save money with clean or solar energy improvements, scammers offer more than they can deliver. People complain that they were deceived about costs and savings, misled about loans and with the Cons check what resources are available in your state: usa.gov/state-consumer-purchase-agreement, or subscribing to a community solar. Permitting fraud occurs when unethical individuals or companies cut corners and bypass the permits and regulations required for solar installations. This deceitful practice can lead to severe consequences for homeowners, both financially and legally. As going solar or using clean or renewable energy gets more popular, bad actors have joined the movement, too. Whether you're considering installing solar panels or already have a system in place, it's crucial to understand how you can protect yourself from solar scams.
